I'm not one to spend very much $$ on my bras because I don't have very good luck with keeping them in one piece. They end up twisted and mangled in the washer or dryer, snagged on other clothes and just abused beyond recognition. So, while I pine for fancy, higher-end unmentionables, I never take the plunge because I know how the story ends. Until now.

The Berry Ball Bra Protector changes the game of washing your delicates. You place your bra inside the protector and it's safe from the damage that can occur during a normal wash cycle.

Some of the benefits:

- prevent lumps from forming in padded bras
- protects gel-pad or air-pad bras from puncturing during the spin cycle
- floating ball with nodules intensifies cleaning action while protecting your bra
- comes in two sizes and fits bras from 32A through 38D

It also comes with the Berry Bag, which you can place your underwear, hosiery, and socks in to keep them protected during washing, as well. Wouldn't it be great to have a guarantee that every single sock will survive the load of wash as a complete set?

They both also work great for storing your bras and lingerie in your suitcases for traveling.

You can check them out here for only $13.99, or if you want more information, you can check out a great video demonstration here.
